

LI: To plan a sequel to Man on the Moon.

Monday 13th July 2020

Hello! This week you are going to write a sequel to Man on the Moon - Aliens on the Moon (A Day in the Life of ...)

This will be about your flowerpot alien that you created.

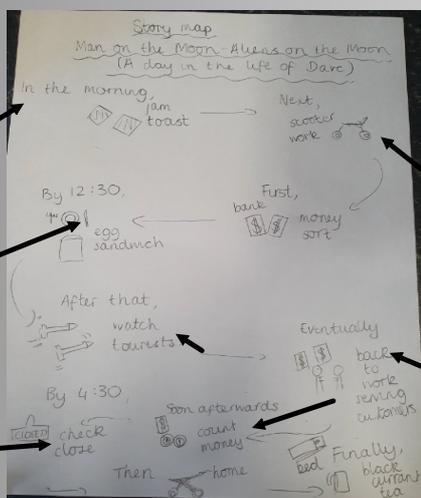

Like the story map you created for Bob's day, you are going to create your own for your alien. You can pick some different time conjunctions with the list here and with an adult, map out your alien's day. This is my example here.

Where does your alien live?

What does he or she eat for breakfast?

What does your alien eat for lunch? Who are his friends?

What does your alien have to do to make sure he can go home?

What does your alien do as a job? How does he or she prepare for it?

Pick three activities that your alien likes to do for fun. Use your activities for tourists mind map to help you here.

What does your alien do before they go to bed?

Time Connectives

LI: To re-tell a story using a story map.

Tuesday 14th July 2020

Practise re-telling your story using your story map. Can you do it by yourself! Then try the wordsearch on the next page ready for tomorrow's episode.

LI: To correctly use -er and -est suffixes.

Wednesday 15th July 2020

In your new stories, I would like you to use -er and -est to compare. Watch these videos and have a go at the activity.

Comparatives

Comparatives and superlatives

Have a taste of some of the foods that your alien might eat. Can you add -er and -est? Use Bob's food to compare it with!

Write some sentences.

For example, my alien eats jam on toast.
Dave's jam on toast is stickier than Bob's eggs.

LI: To invent a new story.

This is the start of my story.
Can you see how I have used
the success criteria to write?
What could I do better?

In the morning, Dave wakes up at 7 and has sticky jam on toast for breakfast, which is stickier than Bob's eggs! Next, he gets on his scooter ready to go to the bank where he works. First, Dave needs to sort the money before the customers come in!

- I can use -er and -est correctly.

LI: To invent a new story.

Thursday 16th July 2020

It's writing day! Use the success criteria and your mind map to write about your own alien's day!

Success criteria:

- *I can use capital letters, full stops, finger spaces and my sounds to spell.
- *I can use the story map to know what to write.
- *I can use time conjunctions from the story map.
- *I can use adjectives to describe nouns *I can use ambitious adjectives
- I can use -er and -est correctly.

Make sure you check back over the adjectives that you found to use in your new story. Make it as interesting as you can!

LI: To edit my writing.

Friday 17th July 2020

You need to read through your story now. Have you included all of the success criteria? See what I've done here for help!
